CUSTODY OF CHILD SOUGHT IN FILING OF PLEA IN COURT

Proceedings Directed Against Sister By Complainant

SHERIFF TOLD TO KEEP GIRL

Hearing Set By Judge Lowe For Tuesday In County Court

A three year old girl today became the center of court proceedings here, when S. A. Lynne, well-known local attorney, filed on behalf of Mrs. Leona Shawan, of Kentucky, habeas corpus proceedings before Judge W. T. Lowe, in county court, seeking the custody of her little girl.

The proceedings were directed against her sister, Mrs. Winnie Norris, who is said to reside in Birmingham, but who was reported to have been here a day or two. The plaintiff charged that the child was brought here from Louisville, Ky., it was said.

Sheriff Poole was directed to take charge of the child, pending the hearing by Judge Lowe of the petition filed in his court, which has been set for Tuesday of next week.

Sheriff's officers reported this afternoon that efforts were being made to compromise the case, but no move to that end has been made in the county court, shortly after noon, Judge Lowe said.

The little girl will be three years of age this November it was stated.

"Much interest followed the development of the case during the day as news of its unusual features became noised about and if the hearing is held Tuesday, it is expected a tremendous crowd will be present to hear the evidence.

TEXAS BALLOTING IN RUN-OFF TODAY

Bitter Campaign Ends With Selection Of Nominee

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Drawn to the polls by a spirited run-off primary campaign, featured by charges of Ku Klux Klan and "Oil Interest" control, Texas voters today cast their ballots in what they regarded as the supreme test of the Ferguson regime.

Defeated in the July primary for the democratic gubernatorial nomination by Dan Moody, attorney general, Mrs. Myriam Ferguson received the anti-Klan platform, on which she rode to victory two years ago, in her "vindication" campaign after her husband, James L. Ferguson, had been ousted from the governor's chair.

In an active campaign her husband added charges that oil interests were combining with the Klan to elect Moody.

Moody, executing his promise to carry his "attack on Fergusonism" to every school district, made from two to five addresses a day in the second campaign. He charged that Mrs. Ferguson was governor "by proxy" only and that her husband dictated the policies, which he alleged had created turmoil in state affairs.

Moody denied the Klan was an issue. Answering the Ferguson charge that if he became governor, the "state will be in the hands of an invisible government" Moody declared the sole issue was to rid the state of Fergusonism. Mrs. Ferguson entrusted the speaking most entirely to her husband.

FIRE TRUCKS OF TWO CITIES GET COMPLETE INSPECTION

Factory Representative Here Praises Efficiency Of The Departments

Friday Mr. Turner made a complete inspection of the Albany truck and Saturday was performing a similar service for the city of Decatur.

Late Friday afternoon the two departments engaged in pumping drill on the river bank.

Friday, during the inspection of the Albany truck, which included the inspection of all of its working parts, the Decatur department stood by, ready to answer any alarms from within the City of Albany. Today, while the inspection is being made of the Decatur truck, the Albany department is standing by, ready to answer any calls from within the City of Decatur.

MAN HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM SAW

T. E. Baker, local man, probably owes his life to the fact that he was struck on the left shoulder and arm, instead of on the head, when a heavy circular saw became loosened where it was hanging on the wall at Parson's Lumber Company Friday and fell on the left arm.

Baker is understood to have received scratches on the head, the saw passing that close.

The big saw is declared to have weighed about 50 pounds and is said to have dashed downward from a height of ten feet.

Two Convicts Are Taken By Officers

IONA, Mich., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Two of 24 convicts, who escaped from the Michigan state reformatory here early today were recaptured this forenoon in a wooded section 19 miles north of here. The prisoners, Napoleon Smith and Charles Smith, both from Wayne county, but not related, surrendered readily to Warden Charles Shean and two other officers.

The prisoners said they knew nothing about a plot for a wholesale delivery but merely walked out when the doors were opened.

COURT TO RULE ON ELECTION OF CHIEF

Effort Made To Put Names On Ballot In Phenix City

The Russell circuit court has been asked to rule on whether or not the names of candidates for chief of police of Phenix City should be put on the ballot, or whether the chief of police should be elected by the city council.

The decision of the court will be awaited with interest here, where an ordinance recently was enacted by the Albany city council providing that hereafter the chief of police shall be elected by the council, instead of being elected by the people as had been the custom.

A dispatch from Phenix City says: The court action in all probability means, it was pointed out yesterday, that the issue of the election of the Chief of Police will go to the polls, because of the fact that Chief Perry will have the privilege of filing appeal if the case is decided against him in court.

Attorneys for the plaintiff presented the petition to Judge Jones in Montgomery. Under the Alabama law, such petition may be presented to the nearest judge. It is understood that Judge J. S. Williams, of the third circuit, was holding court at Ozark, Ala., at the time.

Judge Jones' order makes the case returnable to the October term of Russell circuit court. Due to the fact, however, that the election is to be held September 20, City Attorney Smith will seek a hearing within the next fifteen days, he announced. The hearing will be conducted before Judge Williams. Judge Jones' order is dated August 27.

The filing of the petition is the first court action in the direction of forcing the election of the chief of police by the voters of Phenix City. The ordinance adopted in December, provides that the chief no longer be named by the electors but that he be appointed by council.

Already three candidates have announced for the office of chief of police. Chief Perry is seeking reelection. E. V. Perry and Holmes Golden have announced for chief also.

VAN BUREN, Ark., Aug. 28.—(AP)—George and Mack Kimes, bandits, were captured early today three miles northwest of Rudy, Ark., Lee Pollack, of the Oklahoma state constabulary and A. B. Cooper a private detective. They were brought to jail here.

Both men were wounded in the last fight with officers. It was the third gun battle in which they had engaged in 24 hours. Their wounds were not serious and were treated in the Van Buren jail.

SPECIAL SESSION TALK IS REVIVED, CONFERENCE HELD

Interest Reawakened In Possibility Of Meeting

OPINION STILL DIVIDED HERE

Graves And Brandon Discuss Questions At Montgomery

Interest in the possibility of a special session of the Alabama Legislature has been revived here, following publication of persistent rumors that Governor Brandon is considering such a step.

Press dispatches from Montgomery stated that Governor Brandon and Colonel Bibb Graves, democratic nominee for governor, held a conference Friday evening, but no announcement was made regarding the questions discussed. It was believed, however, that a statement would be issued later by one or both of the conferees.

Governor Brandon's administration, it is claimed, has accumulated a surplus of about $2,000,000, which he is desirous of seeing placed before he goes out of office.

In unofficial circles in Montgomery, press dispatches stated, opinion of many observers was that no extra session of the Legislature is likely.

In political circles here much emphasis was placed on a recently announced interpretation of the Alabama code, covering the calling of an extra session of the Legislature. This interpretation, said to be held by some people in Montgomery, eliminated the necessity for a 30-day delay after the call was issued before the solons would be permitted to meet.

The opinion of these observers was that the governor could call the legislatures into immediate session, by telegraph if necessary.

ELECTRIC CURRENT TO BE 'CUT IN' FOR FALKVILLE SUNDAY

Morgan County City To Have Power For 1st Time

MANY HOUSES ALREADY WIRED

Community Prepares To Take Advantage Of Opportunity

Falkville will have electric current for the first time Sunday.

Garner Price, local manager of the Alabama Power Company's operations, announced Saturday plans have been formulated for "cutting in" the Falkville service sometime during Sunday.

The power line into Falkville has just been completed by the Dixie Construction Company for the Alabama Power Company, a crew of men having been engaged in the work for several weeks.

The "cut in" probably will occur during Sunday afternoon, Mr. Price stated, although the exact hour has not been definitely established.

Falkville, one of Morgan county's progressive little cities, is ready to take full advantage of the coming of electric current and power to that municipality. Already a number of homes have been wired and various industrial plants are preparing to take advantage of the power, which will be available in almost unlimited quantities from the various transmission lines of the company.

NEW YORK WOMAN CROSSES WATER IN RECORD FOR TIME

Mrs. Corsin Does Not Equal Ederle's Time For The Distance

TRUDIE SENDS WORD OF PRAISE

Conqueror Of Grim Stretch Is Mother Of Children

DOVER, England, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Clemington Corsin of New York, the mother of two children and well known as a long distance swimmer, today swam the English Channel.

She was the second woman to accomplish this brilliant feat in the stormy history of channel swimming. Gertrude Ederle who returned to her home in New York yesterday, conquered the grim stretch of water on August 6, being the first woman ever to swim the channel and setting up the record of 14 hours and 31 minutes.

Mrs. Corsin's victory was the more impressive inasmuch as Frank Perks, English swimmer who started with her last night and swam most of the way in her trail was forced to quit when a mile and a half from the English coast after being in the water more than 14 hours.

Except for the record of 14 hours and 31 minutes made by Miss Ederle, Mrs. Corsin broke the record of the previous five men channel swimmers, her time being 15 hours and 28 minutes. The best time made by a man swimmer was by Sebastian Tiraboschi, the Argentine-Italian swimmer who crossed the channel in 1923 in 16 hours and 23 minutes.

Mrs. Corsin landed from Cape Gris-Nez on Dover beach, near Shakespeare cliff, the same spot where Tiraboschi finished on his swim of 1923.

Mrs. Corsin started shortly before midnight and finished at three o'clock this afternoon.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Gertrude Ederle, first woman to swim the English Channel thinks it "just great," that another American woman has accomplished the feat.

Although in seclusion today in her Amsterdam Avenue home with a police guard outside to prevent the crowd, which still gathered, from disturbing her, after the exertions of her welcome home yesterday. Trudie sent out a message to newspaper men when a police sergeant carried in a message from them, telling of Mrs. Corsin's victory. "I think it just great," the message read. "I tender my heartiest congratulations."

RETURNED TO PRISON

Silas Blankenship, one of the three persons re-arrested by Morgan county officers, after their escape from the state industrial school at East Lake, was transferred to Kilby prison Friday. Local People To Aid In Entertainment Of Visitors

More than a thousand singers and visitors probably will be in the Twin Cities to attend the annual singing of the Sacred Harp organization on next Saturday and Sunday at the Morgan county courthouse.

Singers are expected here from points in Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia, the gathering here being an annual affair, which was started here several years ago and which has grown continually in importance, attendance and interest.

Members of the committee on arrangement declare they expect to make the forthcoming singing the most successful ever held here. J. P. Matlock, well-known local business man, announced Saturday that on Monday he would solicit contributions from local people to entertain the visitors at one meal during their visit here, probably Sunday at noon.

These plans are still in the indefinite stage, however. The various civic organizations here are expected to render all aid possible in making the visit of the singers a most enjoyable one. The local "sing" is being extensively advertised throughout this section and efforts are being made to give it a place of equal ranking with the older "sings" held in other places in the state, which have been known to attract as many as 5,000 visitors.

CANDIDATES MUST ACT QUICKLY NOW

Monday Last Day To Make Changes On City Ballots

Albany city officials today urged candidates to bear in mind that Monday is the last date on which petitions of candidacy can be filed and last day for withdrawals of nominations already made.

In the ward and general mass meetings a large number of nominations for municipal offices were made. Some of these candidates already have signified their intention, in writing, to the city officials that they will not be candidates. There still remains, however, quite a large field and it was believed, a number of additional candidates who do not intend to make the race.

Officials pointed out that after Monday, the ballot will be complete and persons desiring their names to appear thereon, or persons desiring their names left off, must give formal notice to city authorities on or before that time.

TENNESSEE YOUTH WINS SEAT IN CONGRESS BY DOGGED DETERMINATION.

There is a lesson for old and young alike in the story of how Wilburn Cartwright, formerly a Tennessean, but now of Oklahoma, won a seat in Congress in the recent democratic primary, gaining the nomination at the age of 35 over a popular congressman.

The victory of Mr. Cartwright was so amazing that the Daily Oklahoman, of Oklahoma City, "wondered how he did it" and then proceeded to dig up the interesting story which lay behind the successful termination of his single-handed campaign.

Twenty-three years ago Cartwright, then a boy less than 15 years of age, removed to Oklahoma with his father, after the latter had found making a living on a Tennessee farm too difficult a matter for his tired frame. At 15, Cartwright started to school, finishing the eighth grade when he was 20.

A singular feature of the narrative is that probably the first public address Cartwright had ever heard which made any impression on him was delivered by his later-to-be opponent, Congressman Carter, who told the assembled school boys and girls that the world was full of opportunity for them and that someday they would step into their elder's places. How true the congressman's statement was is revealed in the election returns which gave Cartwright a majority of 2,000 votes over the man who had given him such good advice nearly 20 years ago.

Cartwright did odd jobs to pay his way through his first years at school. Then he won a teacher's certificate and began teaching in a rural school-house.

Still making the most of those "opportunities" Congressman Carter had reminded him of, Cartwright studied law while he taught and later graduated in law from the state university. He then was elected superintendent of schools at an Oklahoma mining town and in 1922 he made his first race against Congressman Carter. In 1924 he tried again and made a better showing than he had the first time.

"I figured that if I ran third," he explained, "the first time and came up with 1,000 votes and second place in 1924 that I was the logical contender this year."

The Nashville Tennessean, commenting on the story, says:

Only $24 was contributed to the campaign race and this by personal friends. All of the office work, the advertising and newspaper publicity was handled by Cartwright and his wife from their home in McAlester, Okla., and the private car which this Lochinvar rode was nothing more than an humble Ford coupe which seems certain in this instance to be the steed that will ride him into national legislation circles at Washington.

Young people who now are preparing to begin their new school terms should find the story of Congressman-elect Cartwright an inspiration to them. When they are disconsolate and discouraged, it would be well to read again the thrilling narrative of how this young Tennessean, by dogged determination, took himself from a humble beginning into the halls of Congress.

COTTON WAREHOUSE CONSTRUCTION IS HEALTHY DEVELOPMENT SIGN.

The announcements in recent weeks of construction of new cotton warehouses in the Twin Cities is a healthy sign of development and one which should be very gratifying to every resident of the Twin Cities for it reveals the real and growing importance of this community as a cotton center.

The construction of so many new warehouses does not mean that the approaching year will find so many extra thousands of bales handled here as one might suppose on first consideration of the building figures. There will be an increase in bales handled here, after the new warehouses are completed, but one of the primary causes of warehouse extension here and elsewhere are the new regulations regarding warehousing conditions, promulgated by state departments of agriculture based on state statutes.

The new regulations, to become operative, require much warehousing space for every bale must be under cover. This, of course, means that in the permanent cotton centers, much additional space is necessary. The construction of new warehouses here means that Albany-Decatur being a permanent cotton center will continue to be such. The construction of new warehouses here also means that as a permanent cotton center, the Twin Cities are growing. Their facilities being increased, it is not difficult to understand that their market will be enlarged.

EDUCATIONAL FORCES DO NOT INTEND TO LET SCHOOL PROGRESS STOP

The meeting of county school principals in Montgomery this week, to discuss problems of education, furnishes very good evidence that the educational forces of Alabama do not intend to permit a stop in school progress, election or no election.

Inasmuch as the democratic campaign ended more than a week ago, the meeting in Montgomery could not be labelled a political gathering. On the other hand it was a conference of those who realize the acute need in Alabama of strengthening of the state's school system and are in better position probably than others to tell how the improvement should be made.

The Daily several days ago urged that the voters of this state, who heard the bright promises of legislative and gubernatorial candidates in behalf of the state's school system, see to it that these various campaign pledges are fulfilled.

There was not a single candidate for governor who did not, in some manner or the other, express himself in favor of lengthening the school terms in the rural areas. Colonel Graves, having waged a successful campaign and having been rewarded by the voters with the democratic nomination for governor, assumes the responsibility of seeing that the farmers of Alabama obtain better educational advantages for their children. The scores of legislative candidates who were selected as the democratic nominees assume the same responsibility.

The Daily feels that never before have the officials of Alabama been so close to realization and appreciation of the school needs of Alabama. This is a normal consequence of the fight which was waged before and during the campaign by educators and newspapers, which had the welfare of the school at heart. Public sentiment was aroused as it never had been aroused before.

Now that the campaign is over is no time to give up. If the people relax in their vigilance, the officials might do likewise. It behooves every resident of rural sections to continue the agitation for longer school terms. Only by displaying a real interest can the objective be accomplished.

A TRAIN OF THOUGHTS for the Sabbath and Other Days

BY J. E. BLAIR

"He was a good man." Those five words described Barnabas, the uncle of John Mark, and the fellow missionary of St. Paul. When the Rev. S. D. Logan, preached the funeral of the late Dr. John S. Park, at the Decatur First Presbyterian church the point was made that Dr. Park would rather be described as was Barnabas than in any other way. Was the sainted preacher right? We all say, "Yes," but do our deeds bear out our judgment? Are we seeking to be good or just clever, pleasure loving and "efficient"?

The average man it is said would rather be considered clever than good. At any rate most people will get madder if called a "fool" than if they are called "bad." All right—but with all due respect to him, is the judgment of the average man of value? It is not, on spiritual matters. If the average person were right, the "broad road" would be leading upward, instead of downward. Barnabas was not an average man. He established a reputation for love of justice and long before he became a missionary, he was in authority in the church at Jerusalem. He was a good man in that he was a good steward of the goods and land God had given him. He was a good man as regards faith, for he had faith to believe that God would lead his people out of darkness into the light. He showed this, by becoming one of the torch bearers of the everlasting gospel. Barnabas was a good man as to his loyalties. He stood up for John Mark, the "notion" young missionary, when no less a man than the Paul frowned down upon Mark. He withstood Paul, to the face, and it must have taken a brave man to do that! So Barnabas was good in that he was courageous! What made up Barnabas' goodness then—his love of justice, his faith in God, his fairness in dealing with God (as to property), his loyalty to a young man and his courage even in the face of the displeasure of the great Paul?

If it is great to be good, then how become good. Dr. Park had Mr. Logan preach his funeral on the text: "I have fought a good fight, I have kept the faith." In other words what I am trying to say is that fighting the good fight of faith made Dr. Park a good man. Anybody will become good, and finally great who fights the good fight of faith. They only the victory win "who hold the faith fight." They only are good, "who hold to their faith unswerving by prizes the world and the devil hang on high, who dare for some high cause suffer, resist, fight and if need be to die!"

Coolidge will not tolerate or accept Europe's suggestion that we should cut our tariffs to suit Europeans, as the price or our admission to the World Court.

It would be a little too silly to allow Europe to make our laws. It is bad enough and stupid enough to suggest that the United States should go before a European so-called "World Court" and abide by its decisions. Why not our own courts, and our own decisions.

HENRY FORD will plant 2,000 acres of hemp, believing that modern methods in growing and handling will make linen cheaper than cotton, in proportion to wear.

Hemp fields, however, will not keep Henry Ford from watching Mr. Sloan, of the General Motors company, who plans to put out one million copies of a cheap car in 1927. When you speak of "a million cheap cars" Ford forgets all about hemp and has reason to.

THOUSANDS crowding to view the remains of Rudolph Valentino lying in state broke the plate glass windows of the Mortuary Chapel. One hundred, nearly all women, were injured. No death since that of Lincoln has caused the public excitement produced by the death of this great film star.

When his death was announced, women in tears crowded around newstands to buy the latest editions.

SOME profess amazement at this interest: even Cyrus H. K. Curtis' newspaper says that the interest in Valentino's death "gives the observer an uneasy sense of unfamiliarity with American values."

Mr. Curtis should be the last to say that. One of the greatest of American values is publicity. In this country one hundred and thirty millions every week pay of admission to moving pictures theatres, and tens of millions lost a friend.

TWO new ideas in prohibition enforcement, "shoot to kill" orders are sent to prohibition officers, particularly to a squad of forty customs men recently appointed for special bootleg work.

If the bootleggers run away they are to be shot—dead if possible.

ALSO the government will divide the receipts from fines imposed on bootleggers. The informer will get one-quarter of what the government gets.

This shows energy, will it discourage men that can change

Predict Cotton Crop Be Smaller

—An Alabama cotton crop of 1,073,000 bales, or 284,000 bales less than the state produced last year, is indicated by the condition of the crop on August 16, according to F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician, co-operating with the Alabama extension service.

NOTHING new from Mexico except that there is no agreement between the Catholic church and the Mexican government. The Vatican issues through the papal Secretary of State an official statement warning the public against inaccurate news concerning the Mexican controversy.

Crowds visiting the great cathedral from which priests are absent say they have seen what they call "The ghosts of bishops flitting about" and believe that they have returned to protect the church treasures.

The police are investigating, fearing that thieves have assumed the role of pseudo-bishops.

GERMANY wanted to buy Belgian territory taken from Germany after the big war.

But France says no and means no. Belgium was willing to sell. The French say they have guaranteed Belgium's frontier and it must stay as it is. Belgium says she has a right to change it, but for the present, France is too strong.

Many things will happen when the next big European war breaks out. And there will be several revisions of agreements.

DON JUAN

Novel by INIZ
SABASTIAN

Copyright, 1925, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

His father's warning—"Take women's love scornfully—and forget"—has made Juan the world's greatest lover. His cynicism is checked by Modestine, a Spanish girl, who, by loving her, he reforms, but incurs the enmity of infamous Lucretia Borgia, who loves him, and Donati, her kinsman, who loves Lucretia. The Borgias have a catch Donati in Adriana's room under circumstances that destroy his faith. Cynically he becomes the lover of Lucretia; to save her father, Adriano marries Donati. Count Rinaldi traps his wife in Juan's room. She kills herself, but Juan blames Rinaldi.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

One of the men loosened his hold; the other two looked inquiringly at Juan. He shrugged his shoulders, spoke with what was almost solicitude, save for its note of mockery.

Rinaldi renewed his struggles, and even for the three men subduing him he was no easy task. He fought with the superhuman strength of a madman, snarling at them, almost dragging himself from their grasp once, and leaping toward Juan, who apparently was only politely interested in his frantic efforts to free himself.

He was beaten into submission at last, and dragged from the room. Juan, looking down at the dead woman, shuddered with horror. For a moment it seemed as if the demon within him might lose its grip, conquered by pity. Then, straightening his shoulders, Juan strode toward the door, followed by Pedrillo.

He went to the outer door, stood there for a moment, watching Rinaldi disappear into the distance, on his way to prison. Poor devil! Well, that was what love of a woman brought one to, he told himself. Never would he give in to it again. Something whispered to him that never again would there be anyone like Adriana in his life, that never could he care for anyone else as he did for her. He laughed bitterly at the thought.

Her face rose before him; its lovely contours, its purity, the long, delicate lines of her slender body were clear before him. He had told himself that he would put her out of his mind forever, yet always she came back to him in this way, as if he could not kill his memories of her.

Always too came the surging love of her that threatened to overpower him, to weaken his resolution and send him to the street corner from which he could see her entering the church where she worshipped daily. He was afraid of yielding to that impulse; his effort to vanquish it led him to such acts as the one which had just resulted in the death of the Marchesa Rinaldi. Yet ever it came back to him.

He stood there in the fragrance of the early summer night, a lost soul, not wanting salvation.

And as he stood, the sound of tolling bells came clearly to him. Pedrillo's step sounded behind him. Impatiently, tortured by his own thoughts, he cried out to the man:

"This is abominable! Will those bells never cease?"

"They will ring, master, until the banquet is over and the Count Donati escorts his bride to their apartments."

Juan stifled the cry of anguish that rose to his lips. He had needed no answer to his question, had known what the reply must be, yet hearing the words from Pedrillo's lips stabbed him anew.

He loathed himself for his own helplessness. Never before had life vanquished him so completely. It was beyond any man's endurance, he told himself, to go on living under such conditions.

Something must be done, before he lost his mind, as Rinaldi seemed to have lost his.

BRAINWORK RETARDED BY PHYSICAL ILLS

Boys and Girls Who Are Going to Higher Centers of Learning This Fall Should First Know How to Have Efficient Bodies.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

THIS is the time of year when the boys and girls return to school. This is the time of year when the young men and maidens go to college. I wonder what proportion of the young people seeking educational advancement are physically prepared for the burdens they must carry.

The thing I want to impress upon each of you who will go to school this Fall, and upon the parents as well, is that it is important to begin the school year with a sound body.

Let us begin with the feet. You cannot study if your feet hurt you. Not everybody knows how to take care of the toenails. If you have an ingrowing toenail or a bunion or sensitiveness of the feet, go to a podiatrist or a chiropodist or a surgical specialist and find out what is wrong. Have your feet in good condition, because they are fundamental to an upstanding and comfortable body. Wear sensible shoes. Change the stockings frequently. Bathe the feet every day and keep them in the pink of condition.

What about your teeth? Have you any cavities or sensitiveness of the gums? Let your dentist look you over and see if your mouth is in proper condition. The mouth may be like a roscub or it may be a cesspool. You must have clean teeth and a clean tongue in order to have good health.

What about the tonsils and nasal cavities? Are they free from disease and functioning as they should? You can't get much good out of your schooling if you can't hear what is said to you. Once in a while it is a good thing to have the ears examined to see if there is any hardened wax in the canal or any difficulty which needs attention.

Now I come to the eyes. They must be exactly right or your educational ambitions will go awry. Stupidity in the school is more likely to be due to faulty eyesight than to lack of mental development. Many a child who has failed to progress in school has had glasses fitted and has made three grades in one year. His stupidity disappears and actual brilliance may be noted by his teachers.

Just because a child can see well at a distance is not proof conclusive that his eyesight is normal. He may see well looking at distant objects and suffer eyestrain when attempting to read or study.

Even though the vision is sharp, the eye muscles may not be properly balanced. On this account there may be strain and inability to make close application to the studies.

Keep the body clean and the fingernails free from dirt and impurities. Wash the hands at frequent intervals. Keep the hands from the face. Never put pencils or rulers or other things in the mouth.

Chicks Take Opener From Barons As Pels Lose To Noogans; Pirates Climb

The saddest word of tongue or pen—The Barons have lost again. So it goes, the Barons should win when they are losing and they lose when they should be winning. The Pels dropped a verdict to the Noogans and the Barons had to lose to the Chicks while all that rumpus was going on.

Bump Hadley started for the Barons and lasted exactly one inning, after that Harry Kelly took up the hurling chores and fared even worse than the original Bump. The Milanites batted Kelly in the fifth for four runs. The Barons managed a pair in the second and their efforts for the torrid afternoon ended at that point. The Barons grabbed but seven blows off Morton and Bonnelly. Both clubs played errorless ball.

The Gilberts were dropping in on the Noogans long enough to receive an unhealthy reception. Nooga handed out a 4-2 splashing to the Pels when Johnny Horan pitched one of the best games of his season to let the Pels down easy with seven hits. Chattanooga was getting 11 blows off Scott and Hilton, Eddie Lewis chiming in with a pair of safeties in two appearances at the plate.

The games narrowed the margin between the Barons and Chicks and allowed the Pels to maintain their four and a half game margin.

Lefty Allen stopped Lefty Fuhr in the Vol-Bear game 5-1, while Little Rock was beating the Crackers 4-3. The Little Rock fracas lasted 11 innings before the Rocks got out in front.

Up in the National league the Pirates held on to their brief margin of leadership when Joe Bush yielded four blows for the Giants while the Bucs were gathering 11 off Barnes and Fitzsimmons. All the Pirate runs came in the seventh when they scored four runs, lurching five hits. Florence was the only Giant to get as far as third, clouting for three bases in the eighth.

Cincinnati stayed close on the heels of the Bucs with another 4-0 verdict over the Robins. Rixey was topping Brooklyn with three hits. The Red infield made three snap double plays for the afternoon to help the hurler.

The Cards were being jolted by the lowly Phils in a slugfest that came to an end 9-7. Kean, Sherdel and Johnson were unable to put the skids under the Phil attack. The Cubs won easily from the Browns with a 5-1 verdict.

Yesterdays games allowed the Pirates to maintain a standing of 585. The Reds are in second place

It is said that he is not waiting to confer with Colonel Graves, the newly nominated Governor. Colonel Graves is at present out of the city but is expected to return within a few days. Governor Brandon made the simple statement that, "I have the matter of calling an extra session of the Legislature under advisement."

Sixty percent Of Crowd Who Witnessed Last Ball Scrap Was Out-of-Town, Others Attempt To Crash Gate

What is the matter with Albany-Decatur sporting blood? That question is puzzling baseball managers in these cities who have tried for a full season to get a ball team going and now that they have succeeded they wonder why sixty percent of the fans occupying the stands are from out-of-town points and the gate crashers all swell under the hatband with the pride of Albany-Decatur citizenship.

The discussion of the local sport situation came yesterday when managers came to members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce asking for aid in the perplexing problem of how to get a crowd on Labor Day. The local team will play one or two tilts on that date, provided expenses are filled before game time. The opposition will probably be furnished by Madison.

Local managers are wondering if it is best to play the Labor Day game or forget it. Their decision will be made this afternoon or Monday, based upon the conclusion they reach regarding the turnout locally.

Madison Will Come

If Madison is the opposition for the single or pair of Labor Day tilts then the town of Madison will be here with the team. Those folks are sold on their team and they don't mind coming a good distance to see them play, win or lose. When they arrive they immediately make their presence known by paying their way through the gate and then going to the stands for a full afternoon of vocal exercise. Little as there was to cheer the other afternoon, the Madison folks cheered just the same. Their team was behind all the way and finally bowed to a 7-0 verdict.

Gate Crashers

Hudson Purifoy was on the gate for a time Thursday afternoon and declared his surprise at the number of grown men who attempted to crash their way past the turnstiles without paying for their afternoon of amusement. The game cost 35 cents, the amusement was worth 75 cents easily.

Purifoy declared he was approached by three good sized men who when told that they would have to pay their way in immediately informed the keeper of the exchequer that they never paid their entrance into a ball game yet and did not intend to start so late in life. Disclaiming the theory that an old dog can't learn new tricks, Purifoy insisted on the admission price and the exponents of the many art of not doing the sporting thing decided to brush him aside. An officer of gigantic stature happened to be close by and but one yelp of aid was necessary from the gatekeeper. The officer gave the trio the once over and decided they could be more useful at home mowing the lawn. They took the broad hint and started pressing the concrete.

What About Football?

But that is only one of the minor incidents in the life of a treasurer. What these managers are interested in right now is the probability of coming out on top in the baseball season and then entering the football arena with a full-fledged flock of grid talent, that knows how to hit the line as well as talk it. Albany-Decatur has had an independent squad for the past few years, but this year things look dark and gloomy when there is talk of an independent team.

Hartselle folks declare that they have no bright prospect for an eleven this year, Albany-Decatur promise fairly good high school elevens, but with only a remote probability that the state championship will bother local heads. There must be some good football, so the baseball managers are likely to take the local load of "Red" Grange's in tow and start the ball rolling early in September.

Support Is Needed

Baseball and football is lacking in support here. Lack of support starts with the high school teams and goes right on through to the best clubs that money can buy. Albany-Decatur has not awakened to the fact that there is a good baseball team wearing the standard of these cities and that there is likely to be a red hot football aggregation donning the same colors. What remains is the long perplexing problem—are fans going to kick in with their support on Labor Day? Get ready now, cancel that picnic lunch, or else postpone it until six in the evening, it's too hot around the afternoon hours to get in the country and spread a picnic lunch. Come on down to Malone Park and sweat with the rest of the folks, plenty of soft drinks,

Foreign Property Is In Danger In Nicaragua

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Two hundred American sailors and marines have been landed by the cruiser Galveston at Bluefields, Nicaragua, to protect foreign life and property.
